An email

- ¹ We can begin an informal email or letter with Hi Beth, Hello Beth, or Dear Beth.
- ² a funny person
- ³ planning or intending to
- ⁴ make contact, e.g. by phone, email or text
- ⁵ want (to see) infrm
- ⁶ say hello to Conrad from me; also send my regards to Conrad. With family members and very close friends we also say give / send my love to.
- ⁷ again, as before (here it is used to say thank you one more time)
- ⁸ We can end an informal email/letter to a close friend or family member with Love or Lots of love. We also often use Best wishes or All the best when we end a letter or email to a friend.

Hi Emma
Sorry it's been ages¹ since² I last got in touch, but I just wanted to let you know³ that I'm coming to Birmingham in two weeks' time⁴ – actually⁵ just before your birthday.

Sounds great, when exactly?

12 March. Could we get together⁶ and go out for a meal? Maybe Mark could join us⁷ as well?

That's perfect. Can you contact Mark and I'll book a restaurant?

Great! Anyway⁸, better get back to work. See you soon!

- ¹ a long time
- ² from a time in the past until now
- ³ tell you
- ⁴ two weeks from now

- ⁵ (see Language help)
- ⁶ meet for a social reason
- ⁷ come with us
- ⁸ used to change the subject or end a conversation/letter

Language help

We can use actually to give more exact information, as in the letter (syn in fact). We also use it a great deal in spoken English to say something which is surprising or different from what you expect, e.g. He looks Italian, but actually he's not. (Syn in fact) Actually does not mean at the moment, e.g. The land is currently for sale (NOT The land is ~~actually~~ for sale).
